

The Arts are hosted by Patmos Aktis Suites & Spa this summer.

Exhibition of Alexandra Athanassiades' artwork until the 31st of August

Patmos Aktis inaugurates the summer season with a new commitment: to become the host of exceptional Greek artwork each summer season and further enrich the experience of the cultured explorers who visit Patmos.

This season, Patmos Aktis Suites and Spa serves as a cherished platform for showcasing the exceptional talent of the artist Alexandra Athanassiades, an internationally acclaimed Greek sculptor. Her five captivating works of the "Horses and Armour" collection, blending traditional and contemporary elements such as wood and iron, will be exhibited in the interior and exterior space of the Hotel until the end of August and are available for purchase by interested visitors.

Alexandra Athanassiades' higher education began in Switzerland at Lugano's Franklin College. In 1982 she graduated with distinction from Oxford University's Ruskin School of Drawing and Fine Art at St. Anne's College and was awarded a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Sculpture and Print Making. In 1984 she received a Master of Fine Arts degree in Sculpture from Columbia University, New York. Her work has been exhibited in many solo and group exhibitions in Greece, Paris, New York, Connecticut, Brussels, London, and Monte Carlo. Her sculptures are on permanent display at Jean-Jacques Dutko Gallery in Paris and Zoumboulakis Gallery in Athens.

According to Fernando Botero, "Her sculpture is identifiable by her personal force of expression which achieves the maximum and significant, using the minimum and insignificant".

The promise of Patmos Aktis Suites and Spa to its visitors lies in the statement of "discovering the essence: where ordinary is simply extraordinary". Alexandra's artwork seamlessly integrates with the Hotel's unique personality.
